Fundraiser to Combat:
Mass Incarceration
and the Attack on Minority Communities

Since 1980, the U.S. prison population has grown 8-fold to 2.5 million due to the "war on drugs." Though rates of drug use and sales by whites and blacks are roughly equal, black men are 10-times more likely likely to be incarcerated for it. Michelle Alexander in her book The New Jim Crow has documented the resulting devastation to minority communities.
